TIPS FROM THE PROS:

Grip Pressure:

A major problem I see is people squeezing tighter just before impact. Whether we hold it like a baby bird or grip it as hard as we can, the pressure needs to remain constant. This is even more important with shorter shots around the green. This will allow the club to release properly and lead to a better, more consistent strike. Remember, grip pressure is a preference, but however we choose to hold it, keep it constant throughout the entire swing.
